

Tylö switches from alder to beech

During 2008 Tylö will make a switch from alder to beech. The change concerns all products that previously have been made out of alder. As shown above the visual difference between the two wood kinds are little, but the advantages are obvious. The supply of alder has been poor for some time now, which has made it difficult for us as manufacturer to keep our promised times of delivery. With the changeover from alder to beech this will no longer be a problem

Beech is of course also a wood kind with characteristics that meets Tylös demand of quality for sauna rooms etcetera.
